

COVID-19/Policy Update
May 4, 2020

Your health and wellbeing are most important to us, and we are committed to ensuring you have access to counseling in an environment that is as safe as possible. Because of this, we will be returning to in-office sessions starting May 4th. With our return to the office we are taking extra precautions to ensure you have access to affordable, reliable and professional care throughout this difficult time.

We are taking a few extra steps to ensure your health and safety:

- Extra cleaning of surfaces and door handles
- Removing the coffee machine, magazines, and other shared items
- Wearing protective gear such as masks
- Promoting telehealth

Due to health or logistical issues some of our counselors may not be able to return to office on May 4th. If you have any questions, you can ask our wonderful support staff for help or talk to your counselor directly.

Although we have returned to our offices, we understand that you may not be ready to do so. If that's the case, telehealth remains a great option, and we are happy to assist you in setting up distance counseling sessions.

For your safety and the safety of others, we ask that you do not attend in person session or visit our offices if you feel sick, have a fever, cough or have traveled outside of the state within 14 days.

Taylor Counseling Group remains committed to providing affordable, accessible, and reliable care. We are here for you.
